50 Things to Do Before You're Five

What is it?

50 Things to Do Before You're Five is a free programme full of fun, simple activities for families to enjoy together.

50 fun activities that cost very little or are free

Why is this important?

All 50 activities are designed to support your child's development through interactions with you and their environment. These activities help build language, confidence, and important early learning skills.

What can we do?

Look through the list of miniature learning activities and enjoy them in any order – learning happens everywhere!

Real life experiences

Get Started: 50 things to do

None of the activities are screen-based. It is really important to keep screen time low in the early years and focus on real-life experiences.
